Subject: RE: tariff refunds - where do we stand?

Hi Ana,

Here is where your entries stand in ACE as of this morning. I've attached the ES-003 line detail export so you have the duty breakdown by HTS line. Entry numbers below are written the way ACE shows them.

Older ones: RB255301184 (the Talavera planters from March 2025) liquidated on January 20, 2026. RB255304622 (the USMCA patio chairs) liquidated February 16, 2026. The Canadian syrup entry RB255310779 liquidated on April 13, 2026. We did not protest any of these.

RB255318391 liquidated on July 6, 2026. RB255323917 (the glassware) liquidated on August 17, 2026, and the retail syrup entry RB255330080 liquidated on October 5, 2026.

RB255316503 is your type 08 duty deferral entry from August 2025; it is still open. RB255320146 (bedroom furniture) is stuck because of the AD/CVD case, so liquidation is suspended. RB255337425 (rugs) has not liquidated yet.

The coffee entry RB255341068 from February is also unliquidated. By my math the IEEPA portion on that one was about $6,402.00, but double-check against the line detail.

Two corrections from ACE this morning: RB255318391 actually liquidated on August 6, 2026, not July 6 - the July date was a typo on our side. And RB255316503 was converted by CBP from type 08 to a regular type 01 consumption entry; it is still open.

Also, the AD/CVD case on RB255320146 was closed on October 1, so its liquidation is no longer suspended and the AD/CVD flag no longer applies. That entry is still unliquidated.

Nothing was paid by the surety, and we have no drawback or reconciliation on your account. Let me know how you want to handle the refunds - we can file CAPE for you for a flat fee per declaration.

Best, Marisol
